

WOODWORKS!

Project of the Canadian Wood Council

The Salvation Army's Harbour Light facility recognized with the prestigious Interior Wood Design Award from Ontario Wood WORKS!

Wood WORKS! is an industry led initiative of the Canadian Wood Council that recognizes those pursuing excellence and innovation in wood design and advances the use of wood within Ontario.

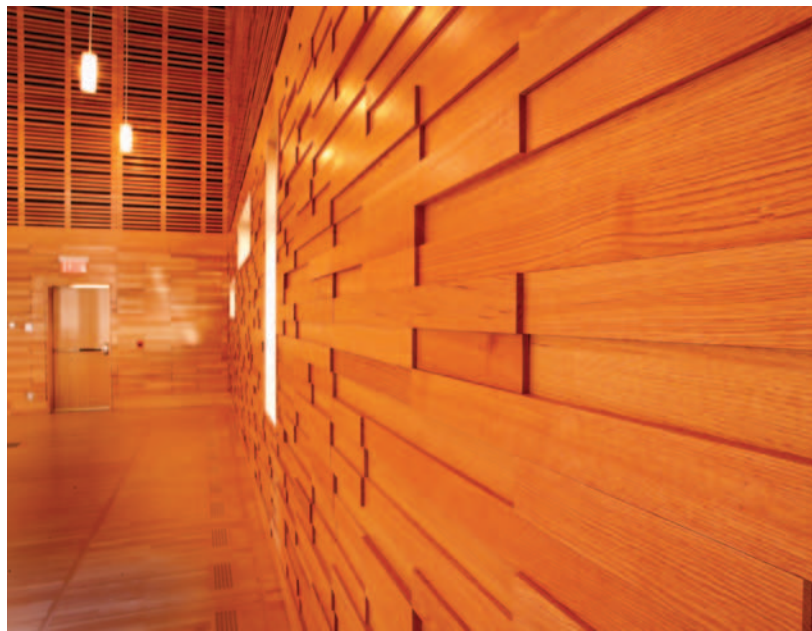

ARCHMILL
ARCHMILL HOUSE INC.

Client: The Salvation Army, Toronto.
Architect: Diamond and Schmitt Architects.
Architectural Millwork: Archmill House Inc.
Project Specifications: The 8,500 square metre, seven-story, flagship building contains supportive housing, community and family services, and a community church.

Solution: In 2011, the Salvation Army Harbour Light project was recognized with the prestigious Interior Wood Design Award from Ontario Wood WORKS!

Archmill House manufactured and installed the architectural millwork for the entire facility including the church sanctuary which is constructed entirely of wood at the interior.

The Interior Design Award is given to a project that highlights an interior where wood has been used extensively in a non-residential or public space. Projects of merit must show ingenuity and resourcefulness while demonstrating the particular qualities of wood such as its versatility, durability and beauty.

Archmill is a leading manufacturer of architectural millwork for the commercial and institutional markets. From our facility in Ancaster, Ontario we produce a full range of custom millwork for the Academic, Entertainment, Health Care, Mature Living and Retail sectors.

Archmill has invested in state of the art facilities to ensure that our millwork is always precision made, quality manufactured and delivered on time and on budget...guaranteed!
